Editor's Letter

Dear Everyone,

I hope that you have all had a pleasant bank holiday, despite the weather being rather changeable.

At least the weather for the Royal Wedding was brilliant, ensuring those of us who watched it and had parties, enjoyed a day to remember!

There is lots to look forward to in the village. The yard Sale is at the end of July or beginning of August. Teresa is organising this event once again, due to popular request. Details will be in the next edition.

There is also the Village Show in September and after the Village Hall Committee meeting on June 12th, there will be the announcement of more events in which residents can join.

Thank you to all those who send articles for the Newsletter every month and to all those who carry out the deliveries. Speaking of volunteers, Paula tells me that she needs someone to deliver bingo tickets and collect money on Southside Lane/Burton Agnes Road/Kilham Lane. Please ring Paula on 420708 if you think that you can help.

There is an interesting article from the police, on page 5, which I'm sure will be of interest to all those who live in the village.

Thank you to Simon England, the head teacher of Kilham School for the school news and good luck when he takes up his new post next term.

I hope that all the Year 6 youngsters in the village receive the SATs results for which they are hoping. I know you think that there is nothing more to be learnt in your primary school, but you would be surprised! There is all that preparation for secondary school!

3rd	9.30am	Holy Communion
10th	9.30am	Morning Prayer
17th	9.30am	Holy Communion
24th	10.00am	United Parish Holy Communion at Carnaby

There is a service of Holy Communion every Wednesday Morning at 10.30am followed by coffee.

Dear Friends,

June brings a quieter time in the church calendar. Whitsunday (Pentecost) is passed and there are no big festivals on the horizon. In church speak we call this quiet time 'Ordinary Time' and the liturgical colour (of stoles and hangings) is green. That colour is a reminder of the growth going on under the surface of ordinary living. And there is still plenty going on in and around church.

The good weather brings its suppers and tea parties. Huge thanks to Somerled and Charlotte for hosting a "Summer Supper" at Thorpe Hall on 30th June: it will be a lovely evening I'm sure. On the same day, a bit further afield, in Holme Farm paddock, Boynton at 3pm I'll be holding a pet service. A chance to give thanks for all the animals that give us comfort, friendship and fun. All creatures, big and small welcome: and of course their humans.

Every blessing

Glyn

"From the school"

Summer term is in full swing at Kilham CE Primary School and we have had some sunny days! On Monday 30th April, we began our 'Sports Relief' week – which we postponed in March due to poor weather. Basically, we spent each afternoon playtime that week walking around the field, having collected sponsors for each mile we would walk.

The weather was kind to us that week, and each afternoon's walk turned into a lovely, social time as teachers, staff and children walked and chatted together – all for a good cause! On the Friday that week, we invited parents, carers and friends to join us for an extended half-hour walk before we had our usual monthly Family Achievement Assembly. This was a fantastic afternoon for school, with a large number of adults joining us. In total, we have raised over £840 for the Sport Relief charity, which is a fabulous amount for a small school like ours.

Sadly, this will be my last news article as headteacher of Kilham CE Primary School. After 8 extremely happy years as headteacher here, I am leaving at the end of this academic year to take up a new post at Lindhead School, Scarborough as from September. I have thoroughly enjoyed writing these articles to spread the good news from Kilham School to the wider community and I am sure whoever comes into post here will continue to keep you all informed!

During my time here I have come to realise just how special Kilham School is, and I have definitely appreciated the help of a tremendously supportive village (and wider) community. There are many people; children, governors, parents, staff, people involved with Church, Parish Council, and more, who I have had the privilege of working with and getting to know. I would like to say 'thank you' to you all for your help and support over the last 8 years. Running a school isn't always easy - I don't really know how to say it, but I have always felt like I have been surrounded by friends here and I will miss you all very much. It has been an honour to work in this special community.

The Bowls season traditionally starts in chilly weather and Sunday, 29th April was no different. However, the dark clouds didn't produce rain, and a good time was had by all in the first club match of the season. There is an element of luck in the format of these "Domino" games as we call them, but there are small cash prizes involved, so for the record the winner was V. McDermott. Unusually there were 3 joint runners-up who shared 2nd & 3rd prizes: D. Cocker, D. Kitching & N. Smith.

RUDSTON
BOWLS CLUB

The Evening League season started very successfully (and in warmer weather) with maximum 6 points taken from each of the first two games. Those were both Tuesday evening home matches. Two other teams have withdrawn from the third division in which we are playing, and it happened that we would have played them on the first two Thursdays. Correspondingly there will be two "rest days" in mid-season as well. Though at Rudston we are all getting rest days in turn this year. There are not enough players for two teams but more than enough for one, and a rotation system is in operation.

That early league success couldn't last of course, and we were suitably humbled in the first away game at Langtoft, failing to add to the points total.

Our first Friendly match took place on a sunny breezy Sunday, when we entertained Leven. Much enjoyed once again, especially by our visitors who won most of the raffle prizes after winning the game!

THE ABANDONED BOUQUET

By Eileen Ward

Thomas just could not believe that he had a mistake with orders again.

He drew to a halt in the lay-by half way down the hill, and stared unseeing at the village set out below him. Taking out his list of deliveries, he checked each one. He put a tick against every address he had been to, and racked his brain to think of anywhere he could have gone wrong. How on earth had he managed to have one bouquet left over?

Leaning his head against the window he gave it a couple of bangs and wondered how he could explain it to Amanda who owned the florist shop. She had given him the job on the strict understanding that he was on a week's trial. The way things were going he would be lucky if he lasted a whole week. Yesterday he had taken a flower arrangement that had said "congratulations on the birth of your baby boy" and given it to a grieving widow! That was bad enough, but even worse, was the reaction of the new mother who received a wreath with a card that said "with deepest sympathy".

On Monday, on his first day at work, he had muddled the orders; and presented an attractive woman with a dozen roses. Written on the card was the message, "To my darling, can't wait to see you again". The woman was surprised as he placed the flowers in her hand, but the jealous husband who had followed her to the door was not amused. Thomas could hear him shouting at his wife even when he reached the safety of his van that was parked thirty yards away.

Now here he was on Wednesday and in another mess. The best solution he decided was to get rid of the surplus bouquet and play innocent. Reaching into the back of the van, he took the flowers, gave the roses a sniff and threw them out of the window, where they landed in the long grass, under an overgrown hawthorn hedge. Thomas was almost back at the shop when his mobile rang.

Amanda's voice came through loud and clear. "Oh Thomas, you will find you have one bouquet left over, I forgot to put it on the list” and she proceeded to give him the address that it needed taking to.

“Got that? She asked.

Thomas found his voice had gone all squeaky as he replied, “OK.” Whipping the van round, he headed back, his foot hard on the accelerator, careering around corners and barely stopping at the road junctions.

With a sigh of relief, he screeched to a halt in the lonely lay-by where he had thrown the flowers.

Jumping from the van he searched up and down the grass verge, as if the large bouquet would not have been clear to see. Accepting at last that it was not there, he drove slowly back to town, trying as he went, to think of a way out of his predicament.

Back in the village, two elderly ladies were sharing out flowers they had found, and fantasising about how it was probably a jilted lover who had abandoned the beautiful bouquet.
